Hospice Foundation of America
Self Study Courses
Available for anytime, on-demand viewing!

HFA has taken the award-winning Living With Grief® and webinar series and created a collection of self-study courses for professionals. Each course is approved for continuing education, and CE credits are included in the cost of registration. All self-study courses are completed directly online. Self-study courses are intended for individual viewing, but are also available for for multiple participants.

How do HFA’s Self-Study programs work?
1 – Register for/purchase the program.
2 – View the program from the on-demand link in your account.
3 – Read the PDF chapters provided (if applicable).
4 – Follow the instructions provided to receive your CE certificate.

Self-Study Materials
All materials are available in your account online and include the full-length program, learning objectives, panel information and a participant evaluation and exam. If applicable, pdf book chapters of HFA’s companion book will also be included.

Transforming Loss: Finding Potential for Growth
2.5 CE Credits - coming soon!
This is an inspirational program about positive change and action by the bereaved in the aftermath of loss.

Living with Grief: When Grief is Complicated
2.5 CE Credits
This program is designed to assist counselors and others working with the bereaved understand, assess and assist individuals who may be experiencing complicated forms of bereavement.

Community Tragedies: The Hospice Response
2 CE Credits
Community tragedies affect many who work in hospice or a field related to death and dying and cause them to wonder how they would, or should, respond if a traumatic event occurred in their community.

Current Issues in Pain Management and End-of-Life Care
1.5 CE Credits
This webinar addresses pain management at the end-of-life, including issues surrounding the use of opioids, communication with patients and families, regulations, policy implications, and drug monitoring systems.

Helping Mourners Deal with Jealousy, Guilt and Shame in Bereavement
1.5 CE Credits
Grieving people may experience surprising and unsettling emotions after a death. This webinar offers interventional strategies to help grieving individuals recognize, validate, and resolve such complicated reactions.

Supporting Bereaved College Students and Emerging Adults
1.5 CE Credits
This program focuses on effective strategies for supporting college students and other emerging adults.

When Death and Loss are Part of the Job
1.5 CE Credits
This program discusses the impact that this work can have on professionals and provide organizational and personal strategies to help them thrive.

Innovative Techniques in Managing Grief Groups
1.5 CE Credits
This program examines the newest thinking about providing grief support in a group setting how to deal with difficult dynamics that may arise between group members.

Grief After Self-Inflicted Causes of Death
1.5 CE Credits
This program explores the latest research into these grief situations and how professionals can help survivors cope.

Dignity Therapy
1.5 CE Credits
Dignity Therapy is a brief, individualized psychotherapy designed to address the emotional needs of adults who are receiving hospice or palliative care.

Parenting After a Death
1.5 CE Credits
This program examines how individuals cope simultaneously with their own grief, the grief of other family members, and their role as parents.

Supporting the LGBT Community Through Illness and Loss
1.5 CE Credits
This course explores the unique issues that LGBT individuals, spouses, partners and families may face as they deal with illness, death, and grief and offers both strategies and sensitivities essential in offering support.

Each self study is valid for CE credit for a wide variety of professional boards*. CE credits are available for 1-year from purchase.

*National Council of Certified Dementia Practitioners CEU approved for NCCDP Members.

To register or learn more contact HFA at (202) 457-5811, visit https://hospicefoundation.org/Education, or e-mail educate@hospicefoundation.org.